SAIGON (AP) — Enemy forces killed about 100 Montagnard tribesmen, including women and children, in a revenge slaughter at a remote central highlands village, the South Vietnamese 2nd Corps headquarters said today. Spokesmen said a government ranger battalion found the victims' bodies on Friday after driving North Vietnamese forces from two of three frontier hamlets in Dak Pek Camp bordering Laos.

The spokesmen said the victims had been killed with knives by North Vietnamese and Communist Montagnard forces for cooperating with the Saigon government.

Reports reaching other channels in Saigon said only that an unknown number of civilians had been killed by the enemy. The South Vietnamese 2nd Corps report was issued in Pleiku.

U.S. sources in Pleiku said they heard a report of Montagnards getting their throats slit but said the number they knew was considerably smaller, in the neighborhood of 20 to 25.

Most of today's battle action in the 23-day-old North Vietnamese offensive also focused on the central highlands. North Vietnamese troops stopped a 100-truck convoy carrying South Vietnamese replacements to the Kontum front with heavy mortar and recoilless rifle fire on Highway 14 about 13 miles north of Pleiku.

Several other positions also were shelled, including Tan Canh, the forward headquarters of the South Vietnamese 22nd Infantry Division, field reports said.

A North Vietnamese regiment numbering up to 1,000 troops overran a nearby central highlands fire base Friday night on the chief line of defense for the major cities of Kontum and Pleiku. The enemy soldiers overwhelmed 300 South Vietnamese ranger and paratrooper defenders and forced them from the fire base in what Saigon called a "strategic retreat."

U.S. officials said the North Vietnamese are aiming for Kontum, Pleiku and Binh Dinh provinces in what is expected to be a two-month campaign for those major objectives of the enemy's offensive.

"Before this thing is over we will have to get used to losing a lot of territory," said a U.S. field adviser.

While Fire Base Delta fell, North Vietnamese troops on the southern front pressed their siege of the provincial capital of An Loc, about 60 miles north of Saigon.

Excursion Delayed An Hour

Second Moon Walk Begins

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 16's explorers, possessors of two scientifically intriguing white rocks, prepared today to drive halfway up a moon mountain in another quest for volcanic remnants and ancient lunar soil.

Mission Control told John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr., to delay their second surface excursion more than one hour, until 11:44 a.m. EST, because they got to bed late Friday night.

Both were in good spirits when they awoke.

"We both got about seven hours sleep, and I feel real good, just great," Duke reported. "I slept like a baby and so did John. I woke up one time when I was cold and had to put on my sleeping bag."

Young and Duke, who bounced and joked over the De-scarates plateau for seven hours Friday, collected the two white rocks on their first lunar drive. Scientists said they could be important in understanding the moon's formation.

Major target for the second seven-hour drive was Stone Mountain, a 1,500-foot peak 2.6 miles south of the landing site.

Young and Duke hope to steer their moon car around boulders and craters about 700 feet up the terraced mountain to gather rocks at various levels. Some of the material might have been heaved up from 500 feet below the surface by volcanic action.

The activity follows a busy first day on the moon during which the moon men set up a scientific station and erected a fifth American flag on the surface before starting their driving expedition.

The science station lost its top priority experiment, a $1.2 million heat flow probe, when Young accidentally stumbled over a cable.

Young apologized many times during the day and asked if a way could be figured to fix it. Ground controllers said they thought there was little chance although various possibilities were under study.

Mission Control cut Sunday's third excursion from seven to five hours to give the moon men extra rest before they lift off late that day.

Originally, the astronauts had a sleep period planned before lift off. But this was eliminated in a new flight plan that had to be written after the lunar ship Orion landed late Thursday because of problems with the engine of the command ship.

Thomas K. Mattingly II continued to orbit in the command vessel today, conducting science.

Band Of U-M War Protestors Storm ROTC Building

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Antiwar protests led to property damage at the University of Michigan, resulted in 15 arrests in downtown Detroit, and triggered two antiwar resolutions Friday from Michigan State University trustees.

Meanwhile, protests were held without incident at Northern Michigan University and Lake Superior State College, University of Michigan officials fixed damage to the school's ROTC building at no more than $5,000 after a band of protestors burst inside Friday afternoon and began smashing furniture and windows.

Damage to the university's North Hall followed rock-throwing which smashed windows of Air Force, Army and Navy recruiting stations in downtown Ann Arbor.

A courageous demonstrator stopped the damage at the recruiting stations with a plea to halt the stone throwing. But despite several voices urging nonviolence, no one tried to stop the rampaging youths who burst into the ROTC building through a broken window.

In late afternoon, Ann Arbor police turned the demonstrators back from U.S. 23 at the city limits and the crowd scattered.

No arrests were reported in Ann Arbor where newsmen reported no efforts by law enforcement officers to prevent damage. The only injury reported was to an undercover police officer, who hit his head on the ground when pushed aside, apparently by a uniformed police officer he was trying to help. He needed stitches to close the wound.

Some observers said the Ann Arbor demonstrators numbered up to 2,000 persons when the protests began. The crowd outside the ROTC building was estimated to total several hundred.

Pair Rows Boat For 8,000 Miles Across Pacific

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — After weathering four cyclones in their 35-foot boat Britannia II, British adventurers John Fairfax and Sylvia Cook today became the first persons to row 8,000 miles across the Pacific Ocean.

"We would like showers, some breakfast—and I'd like a can of beer," said Fairfax, 33, as he stepped ashore at Hayman Island, a resort on the central Queensland coast.

The couple was sun-blackened and their hands were covered with calluses. Since setting out from San Francisco, Calif., last April 26, Fairfax had been washed overboard three times and attacked by a shark.

Miss Cook, 31, can't swim. Fairfax also was the first man to row solo across the Atlantic Ocean. He landed at Hollywood Beach, Fla., on July 19, 1969, after leaving Las Palmas, Canary Islands, 180 days earlier.

Vacationers took several minutes before they recognized the bedraggled couple arriving today in Australia. Then they cheered and shouted, "Good on yer, mate. Bloody great show." Several beers were thrust toward Fairfax and Miss Cook.

"It was really rough out there," Fairfax said. "We were held up for three days outside the Great Barrier Reef, unable to find a way through to the island."

"We didn't want to take any chances at that stage. We had already been through one such incident in the Gilbert and Ellice Islands.

"Then last night our anchor rope broke. Luckily for us it was high tide and our boat surfed over the top of the reef."

Their bright orange boat was bleached by the sun and encrusted with barnacles.

The manager of Hayman Island Hotel, Andre Meestracci, was the first to greet them as they staggered ashore.

"They had almost forgotten how to walk," he said. "They were wobbly on their legs and a bit weatherworn."

"The boat looked like a bit of flotsam with barnacles all over it."

"Fairfax would not talk about the injury to his arm, though he did mention that he had been bitten by a shark three weeks ago," Meestracci said. "The gash runs from his shoulder to his elbow. He had not taken the bandage off it and the half-inch scar had grown into the bandage."

A doctor examined the injury and gave both Fairfax and Miss Cook a medical check. He said the couple were both fit and well.

The journey, was plagued with trouble at the start. The couple drifted down the coast to Mexico before managing to strike out across the Pacific. Then they spent one month in the Gilbert and Ellice Islands after their boat was damaged when it hit a reef in the southwest Pacific. After that, they were last sighted Feb. 28, 1,710 miles northeast of Brisbane.

Methodist Church Adopts Roomy Dictum

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — "As to all opinions which do not strike at the root of Christianity, we think and let think."

This was the roomy dictum laid down by the 18th Century founder of Methodism, John Wesley, and it is a keynote of new set of church doctrinal standards. "Theological pluralism," the principle is termed in the first official updating of United Methodist guideposts of beliefs in 160 years.

Forcing Auto Drivers To Accept Mass Transit

The American consumer, it is said, is reaching the end of his long love affair with the automobile. For city governments, the romance died years ago. Now several large cities in this country and overseas are taking steps to reduce the level of private automobile traffic within their borders.

One approach to the problem involves lowering or eliminating mass transit fares in the hope of luring motorists out of their cars. Atlanta, for example, voted last November for a one per cent sales tax that will enable the city's transit authority to reduce bus fares from 40 to 25 cents. Rome has gone even further. Starting April 30, bus travel in the Italian capital will be free during the morning rush hours on weekdays.

A second approach is to make commuting by automobile considerably more expensive than at present. Washington, D.C. may well be the leading exponent of the soak-the-commuter school. By 1975, the District hopes to force at least one-fourth of its commuters to leave their cars at home and switch to public transit. To this end, it has proposed (1) a 50-cent tax on cars left all day in downtown parking lots and garages; (2) a parking ban on all downtown streets; (3) raising rates in government parking facilities to commercial levels.

For Washington, restriction of motor vehicle traffic is a legal necessity. It offers the only way by which the city can meet the air pollution standards that will become mandatory in 1975 under terms of 1970 amendments to the Clean Air Act. William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, said in April 1971 that five other cities—Chicago, Denver, Los Angeles, New York and Philadelphia—also will have to curb automobile traffic.

Persuading the commuting motorist to forsake his car for mass transit will be no easy task. In most cities, the bus lines are barely able to handle the number of passengers they now carry. Few could accommodate a massive influx of additional patrons without substantial investment in new vehicles.

Moreover, Americans are notoriously reluctant to use even the best mass transit facilities. Michigan provides a good case in point. The City of Flint, with the aid of a federal agent, introduced "maxicab" service in September 1968. The maxicabs were elegantly appointed buses that offered front-door to factory-gate service, piped-in music, and free coffee and doughnuts. Despite these attractions, the maxicabs were carrying only 300 passengers a day one year after the experiment began.

San Francisco, Washington, and Atlanta are pinning many of their hopes for traffic relief on new subway systems. Such hopes may be displaced. The Economist of London asserts that the San Francisco subway will meet only around 7 per cent of the area's transit needs. It also notes that subway construction in Toronto and Montreal "led quite quickly to more rather than less traffic congestion on the roads, because more trips by bus, car, taxi and (truck) were generated on the surface by property development than were generated underground by the subways."

But San Francisco has not put all its eggs in the subway basket. It plans to reduce tolls on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge for motorists forming car pools. What is a car pool, after all, but a sort of minibus?

It's Classic Example Of Educational Gobbledygook

Just an ordinary guy might guess that a College of Human Ecology trains plumbers or sewage disposal engineers. Boy, would he be wrong!

At Michigan State University, the College of Human Ecology was formerly Home Economics.

Curt Barton, editorial staffer for this newspaper, came upon the titular change while examining an MSU press release. He was struck by what he called a classic example of "linguistic inflation."

He's young and will get used to it. America's educators never fail to use many, obscure polysyllabic words where one or two simple ones would do.

Potential Suicide Victims Cast Shadows Before

Mr. X is a white male in his 50s, who is separated, widowed or divorced. He lives alone and is probably out of a job. He drinks and owns a gun.

He is the composite of a suicide victim. "A very high risk individual," says University of Michigan psychologist Floyd M. Wylie. As director of the Highland Park (Michigan) Mental Health Center, Wylie has initiated a crisis intervention program to train service and medical personnel in his city to detect the potential suicide victim before he acts.

The warning signs, the psychologist says, are so obvious that they are sometimes not taken seriously. Among them are:

• Inability to sleep for long periods of time.

• A handwringing kind of anguish and deep depression.

• Key phrases such as "It'll all be over soon," and "You'll be sorry when I'm gone," are spoken frequently.

"There is a misconception that people who talk about suicide won't try it," says Wylie. "On the contrary, they are most likely; they're trying to tell people, 'Listen, I'm really in trouble.' They should be taken seriously."

Wylie explains that traditionally religious and moral taboos have prevented even recognition, let alone intervention and treatment, of suicide and potential suicide. It has only been since the mid-60s that suicide has become regarded as a major health problem.

The responsibility for suicide prevention today lies with all community agencies—police departments, hospitals, social agencies, youth service bureaus, schools and all of the individuals who serve them.

Harness The Campaigners!

A national energy crisis is predicted. If only they could harness the outpouring by presidential candidates in the primaries, things would be okay.

Hakodate, the chief seaport on the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido, was founded in the 13th century. It was a small fishing village when Commodore Matthew Perry visited in 1854 and observed that Hakodate boasted one of the finest natural harbors in the world, the National Geographic Society says.

JAPS THREATEN MORE EXECUTIONS (— 29 Years Ago —)

A threat to execute every United States flier captured during a bombing of Japan was implied in propaganda broadcasts from Tokyo today and it was said that Japan would "leave nothing undone to prevent a repetition of the allied air attack" upon the island empire last April.

"And by the way, don't forget America," said an English-language broadcast recorded by the federal communications commission, "make sure that every flier that comes this way has a special pass to hell, and rest assured it's strictly a one-way ticket."

Turmoil Continues In Ulster

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A deaf mute was beaten and tarred, a man was shot dead outside a tavern, an Irish girl engaged to a British soldier fled to England and a prominent British politician accused the Irish Republican Army of acting like the Nazis at their worst.

The politician, former Liberal party leader Jo Grimond, told a meeting of newspaper editors in the British resort Bournemouth on Friday that IRA thuggery is causing such revulsion among the British that many want to wash their hands of Northern Ireland.

"IRA thugs skulk behind women and children, encourage children to throw stones at soldiers, wire bombs to the bodies of murdered men, assault pregnant women and tar and feather girls," he said.

McGovern Gains

As Muskie Lags

BOSTON (NEA) — The veteran Boston politician, running as a delegate pledged to Sen. Edmund Muskie in the April 25 presidential primary in Massachusetts, said:

"Why should I do anything, when he won't get off his duff?" The attitude is common among the many state and local officeholders who were lured to Muskie at-large and district delegate slates at a time when he was riding high and expected to put out a full effort in this state.

And what this man said is a crushing answer to those who are still contending that Muskie's roster of illustrious state and local fellows will salvage something sizable for him in Massachusetts while he concentrates on the Pennsylvania primary held the same day.

I can find no impressive evidence that these politicians are laboring to save Muskie's bacon. The argument that they must do so because otherwise their own skins will be scarred does not seem to hold.

If rival Sen. George McGovern builds to something like a sweep here, as the latest Boston Globe poll suggests is possible, the name candidates on Muskie's slate may not in fact be scarred very much. In one leading Democrat's view, there is no dishonor for the politician in being "surprised" by a whopping verdict for McGovern.

"They can always claim they were overrun while sleeping in their beds," observed this politician.

Unless all this turns around sharply in the final days, it looks bad, then, for Muskie in Massachusetts. He only recently was still getting whispered assurances from top figures that they were going to go all out to get him a healthy slice of the state's 102 delegates.

The same key Democrat's comment on that:

"When you're still holding organization meetings less than two weeks before the voting, it's too late. . . (aside) Anything going on in your ward, Jim? No? . . . Nothing is being done for Muskie."

To those in Massachusetts who were closely attuned to the outlook several weeks ago, this is an incredible come-down for the Maine senator. At that time he was figured to take probably 11 of the 12 district slates of delegates, plus the 20 at-large which go to the statewide winner. He was the one considered sure to sweep. He led McGovern in a Globe poll, 46 to 11. (Now he trails, 38 to 27).

McGovern was not nearly as well off here as in Wisconsin when he began his intensive campaigning. His organization was rudimentary by contrast. A good many parts of Massachusetts, it is widely agreed, are not prime "McGovern country." Even a few days ago, a rundown of the districts turned up several where Muskie's seeming advantages appeared strong.

Book Takes New Look At Nixon

A genuinely interesting book on Richard Nixon has at last been published. It is, I suppose, not surprising that it has taken so long for one to appear. For one thing, Nixon is a private person to an exaggerated degree; for another, most of the people who do write books are intellectuals, and, again therefore, unable to achieve the detachment necessary to write interestingly about Nixon.

Thus, during this election year, we will have the usual spate of hate-Nixon books by people like Gore Vidal and Philip Roth. These reek of in-group snobbery; their remote ancestor was Arthur Schlesinger Jr.'s "Kennedy or Nixon" in 1960. But — surprise! — Bruce Mazlish's "In Search of Nixon" (Basic Books), while far from pro-Nixon, does achieve a detachment that allows Mazlish to bring his intelligence to bear and present a portrait that bears the complexity of which has the feel of truth.

Mazlish is a professor of history at MIT, and, on the evidence of the book, a liberal, but he is also exploring a relatively new mode of biography, the "psychohistory."

The "psychoportrait" of Nixon is complex, but, in brief, Mazlish views Nixon as divided emotionally between the contradictory personalities of his parents. Nixon is "torn between his mother's dislike of warfare and his father's sharp competitiveness." He is thus "extremely ambivalent about his aggressive impulses." And he "is a man haunted by his father's 'failure' and driven to avoid that failure for himself and to redeem it for his parent."

Using these hypotheses, Mazlish is able to shed a good deal of light on different features of Nixon's behavior. Often, for example, Nixon's rhetoric and policies seem contradictory. Even the policies themselves do not, sometimes, seem altogether consistent. But Mazlish views them as psychologically consistent. Thus the Hannah Nixon component can speak of a "generation of peace" and even of a world without war. The Hannah Nixon component is the moralistic one, felt behind much of the rhetoric; and also the Nixon who disapproves of his own aggressive impulses: "Now I don't say this bitterly," said most glowingly. The Frank Nixon component is competitive, and can strike back hard, whether at the press or in Cambodia or Quang Tri province.

As Mazlish shows, however, Nixon has drawn a good deal of strength from these contradictory components. His struggle to bring them under control has produced that famous self-discipline, an inner resilience which has deepened over the years and been tempered by adversity. It is not the least of the qualities that has carried him to the White House. "There is much," concludes Mazlish, "to applaud in the 37th President of the United States." Would anyone else in the history department, at MIT concede as much?

New BH School Programs To Be Explained Monday At Educational Forum

How does ICE work? What does ICE do at senior high? Is performance contracting a success in Benton Harbor Area schools? How is the honors program progressing at senior high?

These and other questions on the many new innovative instructional programs in Denton Harbor schools will be explained to parents and citizens at an educational forum Monday in Bierman library at senior high starting at 7:30 p.m.

Presentations will be given by administrators, teachers and students. Dr. John Karan, assistant superintendent for educational services will moderate the program.

Performance contracting in reading at Bard school will be outlined by Bard Principal James Ray. A video taped segment in a Bard classroom will illustrate his discussion. Performance contracting in education means that a private consulting firm has guaranteed certain results. No results mean no pay for the contractor.

Teaching techniques and equipment used in Individually Guided Education schools will be presented to a group of teachers and administrators headed by Joseph Shurn, Seely McCord principal.

Mrs. Jane Collins will present a report on the academically talented program for elementary children at Fairplain West.

Matt Glavach, learning disabilities consultant for the district, will describe the reading program introduced at Hull school this year. Another innovation at Hull, "the world of construction," a pilot industrial arts program will be explained by Wayne Melsashenko.

Three new programs at BHHS will be part of a the forum presentation. George Lafkus, Richard Garrison and Mrs. Adrienne Battistone will explain the ICE system.

Sammie Rodgers, director of continuing education center, will tell of the center's role as part of the overall high school program. Principal David Hartenbach will explain the honors program with a video look at several classrooms.

Training Firm Opens Home Office In SJ

Cybernetic Motivation Systems, Inc., a Delaware corporation involved in the manufacture and sales of industrial training systems, announces the opening of its home offices in St. Joseph at 810 Highland avenue.

The building, roughly 8,000 square feet in area, will be used for general offices and for the production of customized training materials, according to president O. J. Patti. The company is currently remodeling the Highland avenue building and expect to be in full production by early this summer.

The new home office of CMS was formerly occupied by The Plywood Inn.

A kick-off tour of the twin cities and luncheon at Wyndwike Country Club was held today for a number of guests from the Michigan area.

Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Locke and Mr. and Mrs. J. Patrick O'Malley (Locke and O'Malley are with the law firm of Locke, Parish and Ford, St. Joseph); Joseph Mackin, president, WSJM; Lou Snyder, Whirlpool; William Moeller Jr., president, W. J. Moeller & Co., Inc.; John K. Cannon of the law firm of Dykema, Gossett, Spencer, Goodnow & Trigg, Detroit; Nicholas Pavonetti and Stephen C. Bieneman, First National Bank, Chicago; and Gordon D. Anderson, vice-president of CMS, New Buffalo.

Mr. and Mrs. Patti, who recently moved to 242 Higman Park, Benton Harbor, from the Chicago area hosted the tour and luncheon.

Patti has been active in the marketing, service and promotions of electrical products in various capacities for 15 years. Prior to organizing CMS, he served as national sales manager for Admiral Corporation for eight years.

From 1954 to 1961, Patti was district manager for Proctor-Silex in six states. He served in all phases of marketing, service and promotional ac-

Man Runs Wrong Way; Killed By Falling Tree

COLOMA — A Benton township man was killed Friday afternoon when struck in the head by a tree he was attempting to fell.

L.C. Morgan, 46, of 1135 Paw Paw avenue was pronounced dead on arrival at Watervliet Community hospital by county medical examiner Dr. A.J. Dalgleish.

According to Coloma city police lieutenant Edward Dill, Morgan was pulling a rope attached to a tree he had cut. When the tree started falling northward, Morgan himself ran northward and was struck down.

Dill said Morgan, a custodian at the Berrien sheriff's department, was working in a parttime tree-trimming job when killed. The accident occurred at 151 West Logan street.

Dill said the accident was witnessed by Morgan's stepson, William Herron, 14, who ran for help.

L.C. Morgan was born Feb. 17, 1926, in Cooter, Mo. He moved here from Missouri four years ago.

He was married to Betty Harrison, May 20, 1961, in Caruthersville, Mo.

Survivors include his widow;

Suspected Thief Nabbed After Crash On M-139

BY RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer

A rifle, allegedly stolen from John E. Piedt & Sons farm supply and gun store, 2400 M-139, Benton township, was recovered, but only after a four-car collision that occurred while a store official was following the suspects Friday afternoon.

One man was arrested after the collision at M-139 and Napier, but two occupants of the auto fled on foot.

No one was injured in the collision, reported at 1:48 p.m. State police, Benton Harbor post, said store officials Vernón and Darrell Piedt, brothers, were working when two men came in, but left suddenly. A rifle was seen protruding from the coat of one of them. They left in an auto, driven by a third man.

Darrell Piedt attempted to pursue the auto in the store's pickup truck. Troopers said the auto, heading north on M-139, went through a red traffic light and collided with another auto. The impact involved two other cars, all three traveling on Napier.

Arrested and booked on a charge of larceny in a building was Will Moore, 28, of 1282

Ogden avenue, Benton Harbor. Troopers said Moore also was charged with reckless driving. Troopers said Moore remained in the auto, but two passengers fled westward on Napier and disappeared. Troopers said a .22 caliber rifle was found under the front seat.

Drivers of the other vehicles were identified as Michael Iannelli, 37, of 2876 Dozer drive, St. Joseph; Walter Schulz, 24, of 1331 Superior avenue, Fairplain; and Jim L. Lechenet, 322 Lake avenue, Benton Harbor. All were blameless, troopers said. The pickup was not involved in the collision.

END OF CHASE: Will Moore, 28, of 1282 Ogden avenue, Benton Harbor, was charged by state police with reckless driving and larceny in a building after this car was involved in a collision with three others Friday afternoon at M-139 and Napier avenue. Rifle allegedly stolen from John E. Piedt & Sons was recovered. Two other men fled on foot from crash scene. No one was injured in crash. (Photos by Charles Brooks)

Parade Organizer Honorary Grand Marshal

Blossomtime To Salute Granger

Fred L. Granger, a long-time Benton Harbor resident who is credited with being the foremost figure in organizing and promoting the first Blossom Parade in 1923, will officiate in the Grand Floral Parade as an honorary grand marshal.

In making the announcement, Blossomtime President Jay W. Holt said, "although this gentleman has received many honors, in the field of agriculture and for civic affairs, we feel it is high time Blossomtime officially recognizes him for his part in beginning a festival which has been perpetuated for fifty years. His appearance in the parade, as an honorary grand marshal, is but a token of the esteem all of Blossomtime feels for Fred Granger."

"At the age of 83, Granger still possesses much pride in southwestern Michigan. As a former fruit processor, he is particularly aware of nature's blessing that has been bestowed on this portion of our nation. The proper climate, the necessary minerals in the soil, and advanced farming techniques combine to make fruit trees thrive and produce. He looks back on this fortunate set of circumstances, plus the hard work and fortitude of more than 2,000 growers in the area, making it possible to build a multi-million-dollar industry over the years.

Granger has a part in building the area, and he is justly proud of the accomplishment. In his own words, "With all the blessings of nature conspicuous around us in Berrien county, the Blossom Parade is a handy vehicle with which to catch and hold the public fancy, while we are teaching them the larger significance of the blossoms." That was a quote from a letter to the late Stanley Banyon, in 1936, who Granger gives much credit for publicizing and promoting Blossomtime.

Granger was especially pleased to see Blossomtime renew the custom of selling booster buttons this year. He recalls the large buttons of the mid-twenties, designed to clip to automobile bumpers rather than the lapel.

Granger was born and reared in Lexington, Mich., but upon his graduation from Michigan State university in 1913, he established his home in Benton Harbor. While travelling for a fruit exchange conglomerate, he met his wife, Vada, in Laredo, Texas, and they were married in Benton Harbor in 1916.

The Grangers are the parents of four children. Their only son resides in Calcutta, and their three daughters make their homes in Western Springs, Ill.; Westfield, New Jersey; and Lansing.

Granger has been retired for a number of years, after the sale of the business he operated for so long, Producers Service corporation of Benton Harbor.

STILL PROMOTES IT: Fred L. Granger of Benton Harbor, who is credited with starting first Blossom Parade in 1923, still is an avid backer of event. Wearing a 1972 Blossomtime Booster button on his lapel, he displays a larger medallion that was used to promote the festival in 1920s. A metal disc, it was designed to clip onto auto bumpers of that era. (Staff photo).

New Buffalo Democrats Open Attack

NEW BUFFALO — A Democratic counter attack has been launched here against Republican claims of "favoritism" in property assessments made by the Democratic New Buffalo township administration.

James Keller, chairman of the New Buffalo area Democratic club and the Berrien county Democratic organization, claimed the Republicans were trying to stifle efforts by the present administration to correct previous inequities. Keller said he was speaking as chairman of the New Buffalo organization.

"New Buffalo township has suffered for many years from grossly unfair assessments and tax practices under previous administrations," Keller said in a prepared statement.

The township had a Republican administration until the present Democratic administration took over after the last township election. Township offices are at stake in this year's general elections again.

Keller cited low assessments against properties owned by three ex-township officials, all Republicans, as examples of the past "unfair" assessments.

One of the three is George Behrends who joined in leveling the charges of "favoritism" against the Democrats. The other two are Raymond Valvoda, former township supervisor, and Mrs. Helen Durlin, former township clerk.

Keller claimed additions to Behrends' house on the lakefront had never been added to the assessments although Behrends served on the township board of review for several years. The review board handles tax assessment cases.

Keller also said the assessment against Behrends property appears "very low" in comparison to lakefront property around him.

According to Keller, Valvoda appraised his house at more than $34,000, but that the assessment during the last two years of his term as supervisor seemed to be "substantially low." Valvoda was ousted in the last election. As supervisor he was also assessing officer for the township.

The assessment on property owned by Mrs. Durlin, said Keller, amounted to $400, when it should have been more.

Keller said there had been "no favors or considerations" given by the present administration for any votes and he said he was "quite proud" of the record of accomplishments of the present township administration.

Keller's comments were made in a three-page statement issued after the township board agreed to consider hiring an outside appraising firm to appraise the property within the township.

Board action came in the wake of the charges leveled initially by Republican Edward Grieger who represents the New Buffalo area on the county board of commissioners.

MAY 7 WALKATHON: A 20-mile walkathon by students and faculty at Andrews university on Sunday, May 7, is designed to raise $8,000. About $2,000 of this will go toward restoration of the old Berrien Springs courthouse in background and the rest to the Andrews Student World Service Corps. Dennis Tidwell (left), fund-raising chairman, is shown with two other Andrews students, Liz Venden and Lloyd Baker, who will go abroad next year as participants in the corps program. Tidwell is himself a veteran of the corps, having served as an English teacher in Japan.

Father Released To Work

A Niles dad jailed 90 days April 3 for failure to pay support for two children on ADC was given early release Friday in Berrien circuit court because he goes to work Monday.

Judge William S. White ordered early release for Dennis Lynn Clements, 31, of 10 Market street, after learning Clements has the opportunity to begin employment Monday at a landscaping service in the county, said George Westfield, county friend of the court.

With freedom goes a two-year probation to the friend of the court and weekly payments of $25 for support and $10 on arrears of $5,125, Westfield reported.

Sidewalk Vendors Warned

Food Stands Need Licenses

Blossomtime's Grand Floral parade. Sun shining, bands blaring, colorful floats and marchers, a snack and a drink from a sidewalk stand.

And the possible threat of food-borne poisoning.

To curb this threat, the Berrien county health department is insisting that local vendors of food and beverages from temporary stands on parade day contact the department for temporary licenses the week before the parade.

The department is taking a hard line to assure that all vendors practice good food-handling techniques, provide adequate storage and cleanliness for the product they're vending, according to Edward Golsen, county health department director of environmental health.

"If they don't contact us, and they do set up, we're going to go by and order them to shut down," adds Harry Grenawitzke, Jr., the department's food license coordinator.

Local vendors are asked to provide the health department with an outline of what they plan to serve. Out-of-town vendors are being notified by letter to appear from 6 to 10 a.m. on parade day at the county courthouse parking lot for inspection and licensing.

Temporary licenses cost $5 each but are free to nonprofit agencies like churches, scout groups, etc.

Golsen also reminded restaurant operators throughout the county to apply before April 30 for 1972-73 fixed food establishment licenses. Nonprofit as well as commercial establishments must obtain licenses. They cost $30 but are free to nonprofit agencies.

The penalty for operating without one is a misdemeanor punishable by 90 days of jail and $100 fine.

About 200 of the 570 fixed food establishments still had not applied for new licenses by Thursday.

Shooting Probed

DOWAGIAC — Cass county sheriff's deputies this morning are seeking the assailant of a Dowagiac man shot following an argument in a bar here last night.

Forrest Lucas, 44, of 118 1/2 South Lowe street, Dowagiac, was listed in good condition this morning in Niles Pawating hospital, suffering from a gunshot wound under his right arm.

Deputies said this morning that Lucas had been heard arguing with another man at about 10 p.m. yesterday in the Meadow Street Lounge, Dowagiac, when a shot was heard and Lucas fell to the floor.

Investigation of the shooting was continuing this morning.

School Tax Vote Monday In Hartford

HARTFORD — Voters here will decide Monday whether to reinstate an expired eight mill property tax levy to help finance operations of the Hartford public schools.

Polls in the lobby of Hartford high school will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The tax, if approved, would extend for three years and raise about $160,000 annually. The Hartford district currently levies 27.18 mills on property, for school revenues in 1971-72 of about $550,000. The total 1971-72 budget is $1.2 million.

Last August Hartford voters renewed a five mill tax and added another mill to their property taxes. That six mill levy was approved for three years.

According to Gary Waterkamp, Hartford schools superintendent, reinstatement of the eight mills will allow the schools to maintain existing programs.

He said that any pay raises, cost increases due to inflation, or program expansions will have to be financed either by more state aid or higher district property valuation.

Watervliet Board Will Make Millage Decision

WATERVLLET — The Watervliet school board will decide Monday night how much millage it will request in the annual school district election June 12.

The decision will be made in a public board meeting 7:30 p.m. in Watervliet high school.

A new property tax levy must be determined because of the expiration of a 16 mill tax. That tax was approved by district voters in 1969 for a two year period.

The total school property tax in 1971 was 32.726 mills, which raised approximately $579,000.

AG Chief To Judge Parade

B. Dale Ball, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, will be one of three judges for Blossomtime's Grand Floral Parade Saturday, May 6.

Lee Warnock, chairman of the judges' committee, said Ball also will assist in presentation of trophies to parade winners at the Grand Floral Ball at Shadowland St. Joseph the night of May 6.

Ball has judged several past Grand Floral Parades in accordance with a Blossomtime tradition of having representation from the State Department of Agriculture on the judging panel.

Ball has held his present position since 1965. He joined the department in 1951 after being a vocational agriculture teacher.

Other parade judges will be announced later.

LOOK AT UN WITHOUT GLASSES

Editor,

I think that the time has come for the American people to take a good long look at the "peaceful" United Nations (since we pay two-thirds the total cost) without our "rose colored glasses."

A volume issued in 1950 by the State Department entitled "Postwar Foreign Policy Preparation, 1939-45" describes in detail the policies and documents leading up to the creation of the United Nations, the names and men who shaped these policies. This and other official records reveal that the following men, within the United States State Department and Treasury Department were the key figures in the planning of the UNO:

Alger Hiss, Harry Dexter

As I think of these memories of long ago,
I see myself trudging down that half-mile road,
through rain, sleet and snow,
To that little one room school at the countrycross road.

Ah! Ha! but then comes Spring, and that little school bell will cease to ring.
And we are free until next fall,
no, not quite fall, Granddad will see there is work for all.

Feed the hogs and clean the pens,
climb to the hay mow and throw down hay,
For the horses, and cows and then;
out to the pasture and drive the cows in.

Fed them and milk them,
then bed them down for the night,
go into supper, yes, I mean
mean supper,
and eat a hearty meal by the old kerosene light.

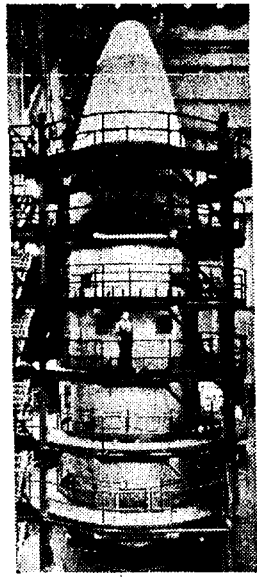

Comes a day with not much to do, then what a thrill to get out iron hoop and two foot stick,
and pitter patter up the gravel road and hill, barefooted through the dust so thick.

I'll tell you folks, you have never lived,
if you were not raised on a little farm,
out in the quiet and away from harm.

On Sunday morning it was a must,
even through rain snow,
off to Sunday School and Church we must go.
Oh! No! it wasn't by car,
it was the old gray mare, that would get us there.
